DIGITAL HYGIENE

Despite requiring that all submissions be in MSWord, as .docx files, and our Contributors' Guide, as editors, we face the task of integrating more than a hundred essays, each initially written on different hardware, and subsequently multiply exchanged between variant machines. To facilitate this it is extremely important that all contributors observe certain 'good practice' in preparing digital TSS.

1. Please do not use any of consecutive spaces, tabs, or blank returns ; instead, use paragraph formatting to indent first lines, to provide space above and below titles, epigraphs, sub-headings, indented quotations, and inset images, and for any unheaded section breaks ; and within the text use one or more em-spaces for any required larger interword space.

2. If any array of material is to be cited in an indented quotation, as (say) a list of editions with publishers and dates, or a list of variants, please use an inserted table.

3. Captions for images should be in an inserted caption-box linked to the image, so they cannot go astray.

4. When copying and pasting from any digital source, whether an earlier document, reflowable ebook, PDF, or online site, please use 'Keep text only' even if it means then having to re-impose your own fount and restore any italics or other elements of display. Failure to do so leads to the unseen inclusion, with the paste, of redundant HTML or equivalent coding, which can have very deleterious consequences for any subsequent reader with different hardware. 'Match destination formatting' does not reliably remove such coding.

We realise that this may not be your normal practice, and can be a bore to observe, but with so large and varied a work to make digitally coherent for CUP, it is essential, and we thank you in advance for your careful compliance.
